Why Zoom is the best place for BlueJeans customers

Executive Summary

The last few years have brought on significant change for business leaders like you, including digital transformation initiatives, a transition to flexible workstyles, and increased pressure to deliver premium customer service. Now, an uncertain economy has decision-makers trying to determine where to maximize and where to pull back to improve effectiveness, reduce costs, and automate.

To stay competitive, you must be customer-centric and flexible while making investments that accelerate growth. The good news is, the communication and collaboration technology you already use every day are driving meaningful impact.

We'd like the opportunity to better understand what's top of mind for you, determine how we can help move your business forward, and make it easier for you to simplify your work.

Our Zoom One bundle streamlines the way you connect and collaborate with internal and external audiences by bringing together phone, meetings, chat, whiteboard, and more into a single, cost-effective solution.

Key takeaways

Economic uncertainty brings new challenges, revenue we need to protect and grow, and costs we need to control.

Use technology as a strategic investment to help the overall health of your organization.

Cut costs and increase productivity at the same time, with an all-in-one solution from a single provider.

“It’s a time to reinvent, make better investments, and reduce inefficiencies. Winners on the other side of this cycle will have continued to accelerate the right digital initiatives across their organization even as there are mounting pressures on profitability.”

Technology as a strategic investment

Providing your existing teams with the right technology will not only protect your current business but will also help you find strategic ways to continue growing efficiently. To maximize how you connect with employees and customers and get work done, now is the time to take a step back to evaluate what your ideal workflows and processes look like.

Ways to maximize your impact

In these times, you need to provide better ways for people to collaborate, solutions that drive efficiencies, and the ability to adapt to an ever-evolving world. Here are some ways to maximize your impact:

Increase productivity with streamlined interactions

- Invest in areas that support team alignment, consistency, and transparency.
- Streamline the way your employees share and obtain information to keep projects moving and foster creativity.

- Decrease the number of applications your employees have to switch between daily.
- Drive to consistent methods (places) for communication.

Keep your customers happy

- Set your customer-facing teams up for success - they will identify new growth areas while keeping current customers happy.
- Solve customer challenges faster with automation and analytics.
- Provide your teams the tools to prioritize opportunities, remove distractions, and personalize interactions.

Stay nimble and adapt quickly

- Automate the ways you work
- Invest in technology that can innovate as fast as you do and lets you be dynamic.

 1,200 times each day

The average user toggles between different apps and websites nearly 1,200 times each day. That's 4 hours a week. 5 working weeks a year.

 2.7x higher

“Companies that drive the right digital investments have 2.7x higher customer retention, 1.6x higher customer satisfaction rates, and 1.9x higher average order value.”

— Alexander Bant, Chief of Research, Gartner Finance

 23% time spent selling

Today's B2B sellers work a 52.3-hour week but only spend 23.3% of their time in core selling or direct engagement selling activities.
